WHO SHOULD COME TO THIS WORKSHOP?

If you work with refugees, you may be working with a survivor of war trauma or torture. Refugees often leave their home to escape the horror of war. Many have experienced a significant trauma. Research in Ottawa and around the world indicates that at least 10 percent of refugees are survivors of torture.

This workshop is designed for professionals who come into regular contact with refugees including:

- ESL Teachers
- Primary and Secondary School teachers
- College and University Professors and Staff
- School Board Members and Staff
- Lawyers
- Physicians
- Dentists
- Social Workers
- Mental Health Workers
- Social Assistance Workers

STRUCTURE OF THE TRAINING

The Canadian Mental Health Association, Ottawa Branch has developed this training for people working with survivors of war trauma and torture.

The Awareness Workshop is offered in a one-day session and will introduce you to the basics of initial response, focusing on the historical and current incidence of torture and war trauma and their physical, psychological and social consequences.

The facilitators will present the information in a participation-oriented format. Lectures, group discussions, audio-visual materials and role plays will be employed.

WHAT YOU'LL LEARN IN THE AWARENESS WORKSHOP

Information about:

- The historical and current incidence of torture and war trauma
- The physical, psychological and social consequences of torture and war trauma
- Refugee resettlement and the special needs of survivors of war trauma and torture
- Strategies for helping survivors
